Redskins Spirit Lives Forever

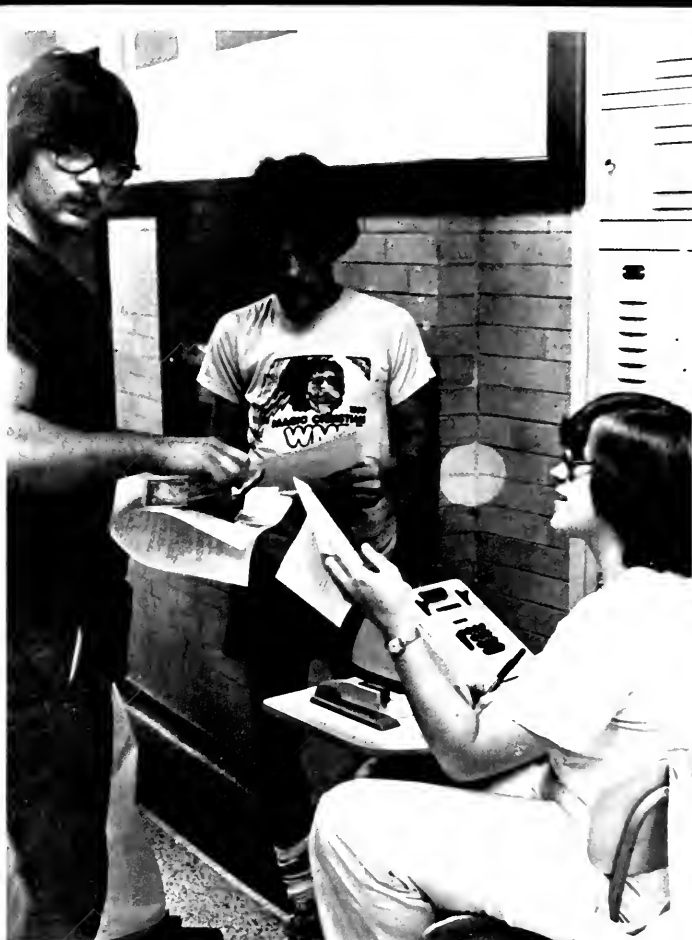

The North Side Redskin: that symbol of pride, freedom and spirit. There is nothing like a Redskin and his spirit, it can not be matched. It is a special spirit that is full of today, but still flavored with tradition. After all, when wasn't there a band or a school paper or year-book? Most importantly, when were there no teams competing in sports? From the very beginning the Redskins have cheered on football and basketball teams, not to mention all the others.

Some traditions have come a little more recently. Chief Mac is only some twenty years old and the Powder Puff wasn't always around either.

Today we do some things like any other school. Spirit week, pep sessions, posters and cheers are not to be ignored by any school, but it is the Redskin tradition that gives us our own special style.

To show their spirit, students competed in activities like hall decorating and the rodeo. The sophomores showed their spirit by winning the peace pipe.

Summer School Provides Credits

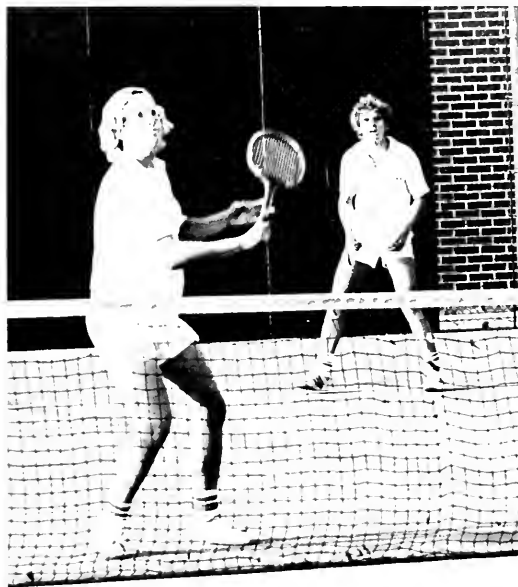

During the summer, high school students from all over the north end of Fort Wayne had the opportunity to be Redskins.

A new athletic program was started at North Side which allowed students to earn p.e. credits. Classes in swimming, tennis, basketball and many other sports were offered.

The academic classes included chemistry, typing, math courses, and social studies. Government was one of the most popular courses. Not only was there the normal classroom style, but there were also seminars. One class, taught by Mrs. Rose Otte, traveled to Washington D.C. for a week. Mr. Don Evans led a class around the City-County building and the courthouse for the local government seminar.

Mr. Taliaferro looks on as students in his summer gym class play splashketball and other pool sports.

ACTIVITIES

Student Council

Lead Student Body

The Student Council was one of the most active organizations in the school. Planning the Homecoming activities and sponsoring the annual Halloween party and Christmas can collection were only a few of the projects council undertook.

Officers Inga Smulkstys, Cathy Lee, Tiia Tomusk and Barb Hoffman led the pack of forty-six elected students through thick and thin. "They just got right in there and took over," said Mr. Orvil Schatter, sponsor.

Mickey Rogers, Inga Smulkstys and Cathy Lee get a laugh out of the little jacket Student Council sold.

Mr. Schlatter put all of his support behind the Sophomores during the cowhand dress-up and all through Spirit Week.

Mary Seiling closes her eyes and prepares to get hit with another dripping wet sponge at the Halloween party sponsored by Student Council.

Senior Dee Dee Didier beams exuberantly after she is named queen during Homecoming week, which was sponsored by the Student Council.

Student Council President Inga Smulkstys and Vice-President Cathy Lee discuss Student Council matters with Senior Greg Tipton.

Student Council member Beth McCorkle checks the Id cards for correctness.

Inga Smulkstys shows her spirit by dressing up for cowboy and Indian day.

Northerner Staff Is Well Trained

The Northerner had a staff of thirty-seven students. Not all people were in the Northerner class, which was taught by sponsor Miss Norma Thiele. Students who were considered as staff material were asked to report and write for the paper on their own time. Any student who had training in beginning journalism or had gone through a period of apprenticeship was eligible to become a member. New editors were picked for each semester. If a staff member felt that he could handle the job, he turned in a letter of application and was considered for the post by Miss Thiele and the retiring editor.

The main purpose of the paper was to keep North Siders informed about school happenings.

Deadlines were always difficult to meet but they taught the students a valuable sense of responsibility.

Chris Hosier smiles at his accomplishment of finally developing a picture for the paper in the dark room.

Green Staffers Started Early

With only two photographers as veteran yearbook staffers, the Legend entered the year with little idea of all the work they had ahead of them.

Editor Rita Meyer and Assistant Editor Kris Kessler began planning the book during the summer when they attended a two-week institute at Indiana University in Bloomington.

When school started in September the real work began. The staff was organized and taught everything from proofreading to cropping pictures.

Deadlines were always the biggest headache, and the staff worked up to the last minute to meet them.

Deanna Reynolds quietly sits and does some paperwork for the yearbook, while Jill Petrie types in the back.

fourteen select people. Mr. Hill has always been very proud of his "little baby" and has an assembly of portraits of the members, drawn by senior Margaret Cabler.

The group sang everything from madrigal music to jazz and was in high demand. They did between twenty-five and thirty performances for community groups and other schools.

The Madrigals, which were created by Mr. John Hill in 1970, consisted of

Concerts Are Choirs' Thing

The main purpose of the training choir was just what the name implied: training. It gave people, primarily sophomores, experience in the singing field. It was a stepping stone to becoming a Troubador or Madrigal. The men responsible for coaching the group were Mr. John Hill and Mr. Phillip Stubblefield.

The Troubadors were a group of 41 students under the direction of Mr. John Hill. Each member was selected through auditions in April. The group, which consisted of juniors and seniors, met second period.

With Mr. Phillip Stubblefield directing them, thirty-nine A Cappella choir members met first period. The members, who were from all three grades, were picked through auditions.

Small Ensembles Had Top Talent

One of the little-recognized music ensembles was the string ensemble. Made up of the best twelve string players from the orchestra, the ensemble's primary goal was to give the young musicians experience in playing with a small group. The ensemble's main activities included playing concerts outside the school, performing prelude music for school functions, and competing in NISBOVA contest.

A string quartet was formed this year, consisting of the lead violins, viola, and cello from the larger ensemble. The members of the group especially liked performing as a quartet because it was very small, but they were not performing solo. They also liked the challenge of having to play everything perfectly. Because each person had a different part, there was no one to cover up any mistakes a player might make. Both the quartet and ensemble were led by Mr. Phillip Stubblefield.

Arrowette Corps Added to Band

The Arrowettes, one of the main attractions of the marching band, are made up of three corps. These are Swiss Flags, Guide-on Flags, and pom-poms. There are approximately fifty girls all together. After marching band is over, the girls keep themselves busy by performing at the basketball games. Mrs. Claryn Myers is the Arrowette sponsor.

King: 'Best band I've Ever Had!'

The band was in excellent form for both stage and field performances. The high point of the year was the marching band's sixth place rating at the state marching band contest. The Marching Redskins ranked higher than any other Fort Wayne band. "This is the best they've ever done," said Mr. Ed King, director.

The Concert Band performed a wide variety of music, including pop tunes, songs from musicals, and classical works. In January the band, along with several other music groups, played a concert tour at Lakeside and Franklin Junior High schools.

Orchestra Did Tour, Musical

Thirty-two student musicians made up the orchestra, performing under the direction of Mr. Phillip Stubblefield.

Besides playing for the regular concerts, the orchestra was one of the groups which played a tour at the junior high schools. They also took a field trip to attend a concert at Northrop.

The Orchestra performed for the musical "Guys and Dolls" Many orchestra members felt the musical was the best thing the group did.

Wildsiders Were North's Big Stars

Wildsiders are the top jazz band at North Side. They have also been one of the top high school jazz bands in Indiana for the past eight years. This rank has been established by their annual participation in contests such as NISBOVA, Purdue, and the Elmhurst Jazz Festival. Twenty-six juniors and seniors made up the group, and one of the big projects for the year was making plans to cut a record.

These trumpet players rehearse with the stage band, hoping to make Wildsiders some day.

Young Musicians Aim for the Top

Varsity Band consisted entirely of sophomores, roughly forty of them. They concentrated on the fundamentals of rhythmic counting, scales, and the development of technique. After one year in Varsity Band they move up to the concert band.

The main goal for the members of the Rehearsal Stage Band was to be in Wildsiders in a year or so. They worked hard at trying to perfect their skills, and for the most part it paid off.

Radio Club Does Announcements

Radio Club is where students learn all the different things about radio, how it operates, what goes into radio, and what radio people do. The sponsor is Mr. Lincoln Record. The members tour radio stations, and they have visited WIFF. Guest speakers come in to give lectures, and members are planning to build a radio station here for morning announcements. There are currently ten members.

Greg Tipton and Andy Gingrich do the morning announcements and learn what it takes to be an announcer. They also did something special: They played Christmas music in the halls before Christmas vacation.

Greg Tipton looks as if he is enjoying the morning announcements.

Leader Corps Has Good judgement

Mrs. Diane Cole is the sponsor for Leader Corps. This club was open to all junior and senior girls. Leader Corps was to develop leadership through on the job experience and to encourage initiative, responsibility, and good judgment to think intelligently and constructively. The girls in leader corps were ones who showed particular interest, leadership ability, and skill in physical education.

Cyrene Buchan, Mary Beth Hartman, Molly Yaney, Renetta Bultmeier, Mrs. Cole.

Club Council Promotes spirit

Mrs. Dana Wichern is the sponsor for the Club Council. The group's meetings were held once a month during school time. The purpose of Club Council is to develop leadership, and to promote school spirit. They also help to coordinate special school activities throughout the year.

Bottom Row: Kay Olry, Sandy Elmer, Rita Meyer, Andy Gingrich, Karen Kinder, Mrs. Wichern; Top Row: Denitta Magee, Fred Wolf, Beth McCorkle, Mathew Jones, Kevin M. Smith.

O.E.A. Learns About Office

The O.E.A. Club stands for Office Education Association, sponsored by Mrs. Wilma Ashe. This club was open to all students enrolled in the COE program. The purpose of the club is to encourage leadership through vocational service and social activities of a civic nature.

Mrs. Sandra Macy sponsors O.E.A. and teaches the recordkeeping class that O.E.A. students take.

Mr. Harris discusses an unknown subject at the Afro Club and Mrs. Epps sits and listens.

Afro Club Enjoys Trips

When asked to sum up the Afro Club's main function, Mr. Alvin Harris, one of the club's advisers replied, "Our primary purpose is to help kids develop a positive self concept for the future."

Speakers are invited to come and give some of their own views and ideas about what is going on in the world today, and to relate a part of their own lives, and the way that they have achieved their own personal success to the members of the club.

Although this club's main function is to get kids seriously interested in their future, there is also a lot of fun involved for its members.

The Afro Club met every Wednesday morning at 7:30 under the direction of Mr. Harris, Mrs. Lizzie Epps, Mr. Phillip Stubblefield, and Mr. George McCowan.

DECA Learns By Participation

Distributive Education of America is an after-school program. It is an instructional, social, and informal type of club. Meetings are irregular and called by their sponsor, Mr. Irving, when necessary, in room 310. Any students may join if they are enrolled in either Distributive Marketing or Distributive Education.

The purpose is to help develop the social side of their characters. They experience through participation the values of exceeding in the career of marketing.

Members participate in a state competition, and also attend a banquet at the end of the school year.

Juniors Brent Johnson and Scott Shuler work on problems during DECA.

F.S.A. Develops Secretarial Skills

The Future Secretaries Association, sponsored by the Tawasi Chapter of the National Secretaries Association, met once a month during advanced shorthand class.

Mrs. Sharon Huff and Mrs. Lill Maybie, members of NSA, assisted Mrs. Irma Johnson, adviser, in arranging special programs. The twenty-six FSA members participated in the candlelight initiation ceremony, attended Tawasi dinners, and sold stationery and gifts in order to earn money for special activities.

The main objectives of the club are to develop a better understanding of the business world through contact with professional secretaries and to stimulate an interest in the secretarial profession.

Speech, Debates Very Instructional

The National Forensic League is the Speech and debate club, sponsored by Mrs. Claryn Myers. This club is very instructional to students who enjoy speech and debate meets. Students join the club to develop ability in public speaking and to grow in ability to handle competition. About fifteen students were in N.F.L.

Campus Life Still going strong

Campus Life, an international organization with branches all over the country, has seven to eight of them in Ft. Wayne. This particular branch is sponsored by Miss Vicki Ottoson.

Campus Life teaches a student to better himself mentally, socially, physically and spiritually. They meet once a week on Thursday nights at different people's homes. Anyone is welcome to join by contacting Miss Ottoson. There are currently fifteen to twenty members.

Key Club, Great Interest in Spirit

The Key Club is involved in fund raising for various foundations. The members ushered at ball games and other school-sponsored events. They also publish the Key, a directory of all Northside students.

The Key Club is active with the Kiwanis. They had special breakfast and dinners with them. Mr. Robert Lovell is the club's sponsor.

Thespians Show Different Talent

The Thespians were a group open to all students that were in a drama class. The plays put on this year were; The Teahouse of the August Moon, Your a Good Man Charlie Brown, Dial "M" for Murder, and the musical Guys and Dolls.

They met every Tuesday after school, and sold candy bars and school shirts to raise money.

Mr. Record was the sponsor of the club, and gave letters to members who participated in four major plays.

Assemblies Are Change of Pace

The brass section of the band adds sparkle and shine to the sound at every pep session.

Creating their own version of the movie "Animal House," these Redskins put on quite a show with signs and togas.

A pep session wouldn't be complete without the Arrowettes and Chief Mac's opening dance. They've been a Redskin tradition for many years.

Cheerleaders

Added Spirit

The cheerleading squads provided the enthusiasm needed for school spirit. After tryouts in May, the girls were split into three squads. Under the direction of Mrs. Sherrylyne Gerber, they practiced all summer making up new cheers, perfecting old ones, and creating mounts. They started cheering at games in August and continued until the end of the basketball season. During the school year, the cheerleaders practiced at least twice a week before school. They often provided the entertainment for pep sessions as well as the cheers. North Side also sponsored a cheerleading clinic where all the cheerleaders from around the area could exchange ideas. Since many of the cheerleaders were in other activities, they found cheerleading was tiring but fulfilling.

This is just one of North's many high mounts.

Cross Country

Had Strong Team

North's cross-country team had a great season. Led by captains John Wagner and Fred Grams, along with Coach Dean Slavens and Assistant Coach Ken Miller, the team ran their way to a record of 10-2. The two teams they lost to were highly ranked Norwell and state contender Snider. The best time was a 12:39, run by Senior Leon Williams. The team, which placed sixth in the SAC, ended the season worse than they had hoped for; after placing seventeenth in the Illiana, they ranked a disappointing tenth in sectionals.

Team members provided stiff competition.

Men's Tennis Inexperienced

The tennis team had a poor season, and inexperience was the cause. With only one letterman returning, Coach Henderson literally had to build from scratch. The team started practices in August and continued until sectionals. With a record of 0-13, the players seemed to know the agony of defeat very well, but never got to taste the sweetness of victory. Still they fought on, learning from every game and match. As the season progressed, so did the players. The team almost pulled off a win against Dwenger in sectionals. In the end though, they once again fell to their opponents.

Even on the same team, the shooting styles of Sim Nelson, Jerry Brooks, and Mark Daniel differ considerably.

The spirit of Section K, new to North, was a great asset to the basketball team.

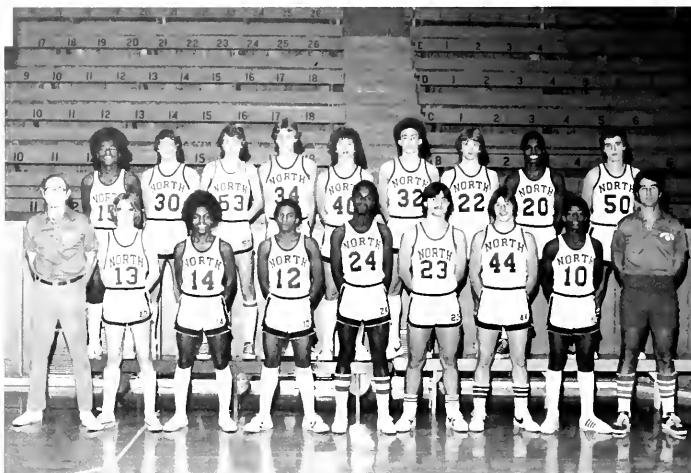

This was a familiar sight at North.

Under the outstanding coaching of Mr. By Hey, head coach, Mr. John Stauffer and Mr. John Ankenbruck, assistants, the varsity basketball team gained a record of 15-6 overall. Their 8-1 conference record earned them the title of SAC champion. Despite injuries throughout the season, the team also received other awards of accomplishment. The Redskin basketball team combined their efforts with the teams of the past to make 34 straight wins at home. Two of the player, Tony William and Ron Lindsey, were named to the all-city team. Another accomplishment came in the game against Riley; the team scored 112 points to break the old single game scoring record. The team ended the season playing a fantastic game against Elmhurst for the SAC title. Going into sectionals, the team's future looked bright, but they were beaten in the second round by South Side.

Reserve Team Had Rough Year

The reserve team had a rough season. They began strong, but the loss of two of their finest players hurt them. Mr. John Stauffer, head coach, and Mr. John Ankenbruck, assistant coach, commended juniors Jeff Smith and Mark Mugg for their attempt to pick up the slack. Unfortunately, they alone couldn't do it. The team worked hard at every practice to gain experience and togetherness. They fought together as a team to keep their record presentable and they did just that. As of the Snider game, their record was 9-4.

Sophomore Team Had Slow Season

Mr. John Ankenbruck began his first year as a high school basketball coach by taking charge of the sophomore basketball team. With the help of Mr. John Stauffer, he led the team to a record of 4-6. The team was hurt early in the season when two sophomores were moved up to varsity. After this move, the team knew they had to work together if they hoped to win. Working together proved a success. Except for the game against Northrop, the team was never overshadowed by the opponent. Their biggest win was the game against Concordia. During the season the eight remaining players had learned much and used their experience to end the season with a win.

During a time out, Coach Ankenbruck gives helpful suggestions to his team.

Mickey Rogers concentrates on his free throw.

Women's B-ball Sectional Champ

The girls' basketball team had a fairly good season with an outstanding finish. They began practices in October under the leadership of Miss Vickie Ottoson and Miss Sue Herbster. Early in the season, two sophomores were moved to the varsity level. The team had to learn to play together to win, and their record of 12-7 shows their accomplishment. The team's highlight of the season was winning the sectional tournament. To do this they beat the SAC champion Dwenger in the final game. Unfortunately, they fell to Wayne the following week.

Coach Vickie Ottoson and the team receive the sectional trophy.

Four Wrestlers Go to Regionals

The wrestling team had a hard season. The team was coached by Mr. Don Hunter with the assistance of Mr. Chris Svarczkopf. Five lettermen returned, but their experience couldn't build a winning season. They ended with a record of 3-9. The lack of people who went out for the team was a major factor of the poor season. Wrestling is a sport requiring ability and a great amount of dedication. Since they did work so hard together, the team became very close. The lettermen found that their experience did prove helpful. They were the only members who wrestled in every meet. Co-captain Leon Williams achieved something few wrestlers ever do. Going into regionals, Leon was undefeated. Three other wrestlers advanced to regionals. They were Jeff Smith, Brian Beck, and Ken Dutton.

Jeff Ryan matches off opposite his opponent, feeling him out and anticipating his next move.

Kenny King and his opponent go head-to-head, preparing for a take down.

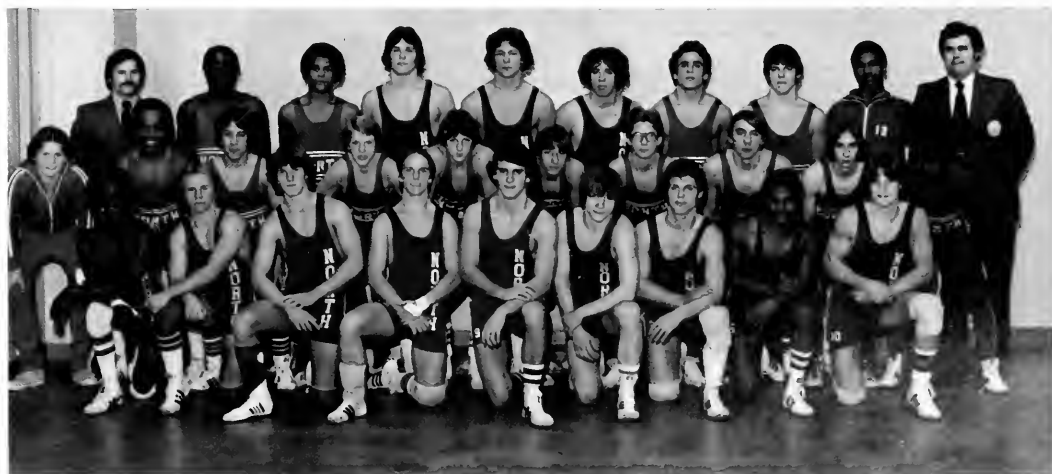

Brian Beck concentrates on using a move that helped him win sectionals.

Gymnasts Tumble For Good Year

The gymnastics team had a great season. They started practices in November, working for two months learning new tricks and perfecting routines. The hard work paid off. With the coaching of Mrs. Diane Cole, assisted by Tammy Moreland, the team earned a record of 9-2. The team was hurt around mid-season. They came back, though, to place a respectable second at sectionals. Three of the team member, Joy Jeffers, Gwen Bahr, and Tanya Traylor, placed high enough in sectionals to go on to regionals. At regionals, Tanya and Gwen both did well enough to compete at state.

Carrie Schaefer proves gymnastics a sport of concentration as she concentrates on her vault.

Teachers Make Math Bearable

Down the 130, math corridor sat many wild, wacky math teachers, most of them enjoying very much what they taught. When a student was enrolling in school he was usually told certain things about the math teachers; "Mr. David Bierbaum has a hard class, but he makes his class enjoyable; Mr. Byard Hey makes sure his students know and understand everything he is talking about and uses situations that students can relate to, to help them with their math and Mr. Randal Liechty seems very down to business, but occasionally he really can crack-up a class." Although this would sound convincing to some students, others were a little hesitant about taking a math class. After the first day or so of school, students found the "bad rumors" of the math department and teachers to be wrong (at least in most cases!).

Sophomore Tonya Zimmerman gives the cameraman two big smiles in her geometry class.

A bunsen burner is only one of many pieces of equipment used in Mr. Schlatter's physical science class.

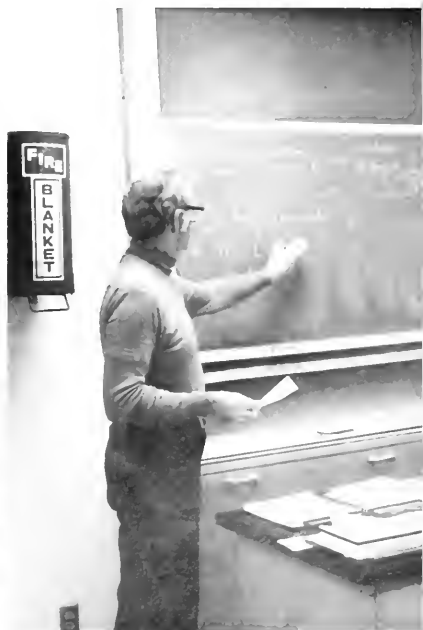

It is impossible to get a passing grade in science without taking notes.

Man and What Makes Him Tick

Rarely a day went by when someone didn't walk down the 230 corridor and didn't see a mad scientist at work. Junior Einsteins and Edisons always were busy over bunsen burners eager to report a new find. Beryl Lewis, who taught chemistry, was always ready to lend a hand to anyone in need.

Chemistry wasn't the only class that dealt with experiments. All the other science subjects had their own experiments. In biology students learned a little bit more about man and what makes him tick. Some of the courses taught students how technology and society were related. In all of the science areas very qualified teachers were on hand. These were Mr. Beryl Lewis, Mr. Merle Rice, Mr. Orvil Schlatter, Mr. Dean Slavens and Mr. Mark Tipple.

Mr. Lewis always writes chemistry notes on the board, so that his students will be sure to get them.

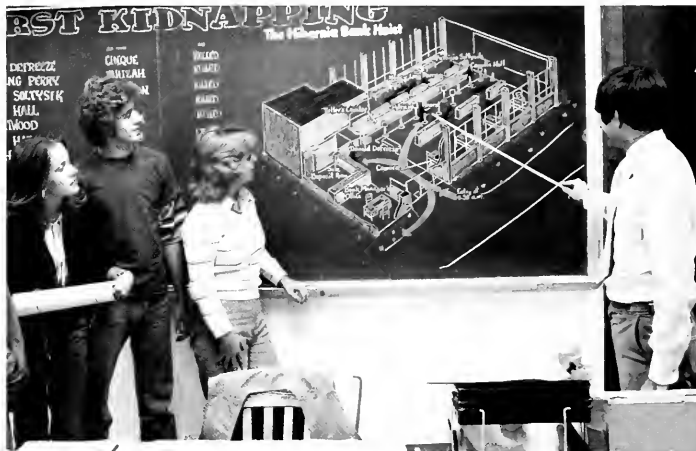

Lewis Woods and Scott Cotham apparently have found an article about some famous political scandal.

Little Change in Social Studies

Classroom discussions, with slides and films, were important in taking a class in the Social Studies Department.

The Social Studies Department had three new teachers: Mr. Valjean Harker is new to North, while Mrs. Sherrylene Gerber and Mr. Steve Keefer are new to the department.

To graduate, a student had to have at least four credits in the Social Studies Department. This could have included U.S. History, E.C.C.P. Block, during the junior year; or Government, Sociology, Physiology or Economics, during the senior year.

Linda Rohrs, Scott Cotham, and Tammy Ratliff enjoy Mr. Heath's story of Patty Hearst's part in a hold-up.

The posters in Mr. Ormerod's room have the attention of Ed Delgado, Dave Trogden.

Mr. Henderson finds teaching U.S. History to be an interesting change.

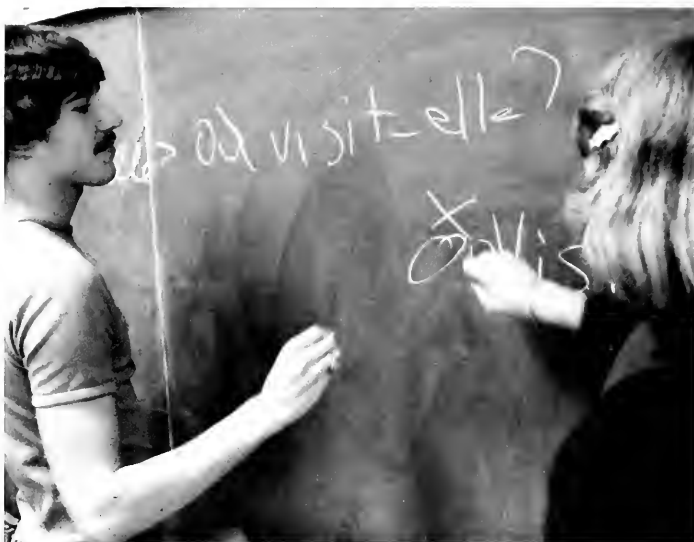

Diana Ford appears disgusted with all of her U.S. history homework.

Mrs. Gerber is sure to tell her anthropology students her sources.

Repeating Words Proves Helpful

"Bonjour Mademoiselle," repeated the students in Mademoiselle Patricia LaFontaine's French classes. Similar phrases repeated in other languages were heard in the foreign language hall. The students were required to repeat sounds and words in the particular language they were studying. This way, they might remember more effectively and learn proper pronunciation. Mr. Paul Lemke, head of the department, explained that "having a foreign language can be very helpful and very enjoyable at the same time."

Senior Bill Koenig and Junior Nina Lamb compete in board races in second-year French.

Mr. Paul Lemke explains the basics of Spanish.

Mr. Ward Beckley's first year Latin class looks on as he explains techniques.

Sophomores Tim Perkins and Kent Selby listen intently as their English teacher talks about literature.

Students Show Their Creativity

The English Department offered many types and levels of English. It included: high honors, college prep, practical, basic reading, speech, a block program, journalism, creative writing, and humanities.

Mrs. Kathleen Neuhaus, the department head, offered creative writing. In this class students wrote books, stories and poems, then sent them to various contests.

One of the more unusual classes in this department was humanities, taught by Mr. John Hill, which specialized in studying man's values.

English Teacher Vickie Ottoson explains sentence structure to an on looking student.

Todd Garrison finds a new way of studying.

Slave-driver or Watchful Hawk?

Behind the big, dark, Dutch doors of room 113, it was rumored, there lurked a slave driver named Miss Norma Thiele. Outsiders heard stories of the woman who shouted her orders every morning and then watched like a hawk to make sure her students were proof-reading or typing newspaper or year-book copy, not their English research papers.

Looking from the inside out was an entirely different view. These students knew they were there to work and Miss Thiele rarely found cause to be a slave-driver or watchful hawk. Reporters frequently spent most of the period tracking down Mrs. Dana Wichern or Mrs. Delores Klocke for an interview. Editors were kept busy making assignments, copyreading completed stories and finding out what happened to that story that just came up missing.

Students on the Northerner and Legend were among the best informed students in the school. They knew when the band was going to a contest or why, or when and where to sign up for a new club. They knew this, because it was their duty to know and to pass this knowledge on to their fellow students.

The Legend staff, including Editor Rita Meyer, Brenda Hoyer, Christy Koeneman, and Teresa Burrows, takes time out to study past years.

Nobody knows what Chris and Ken Hosier do in the dark room.

Senior Ann Pequignot discusses a problem with Miss Thiele.

Mrs. Claryn Myers directs her speech class.

Brave Students Speak Effectively

Speech was a popular, one semester class. It was taught by Mrs. Claryn Myers. Students were required to get up in front of the class and give speeches on different subjects. There also was Competitive Speech for the brave students. This involved traveling to other schools and competing with other students. The primary focus was learning to speak effectively in front of a group of people.

Mrs. Myers checks her speech class work.

Sophomores Valerie Crider and Mary Seiling get assistance from Mrs. Myers, speech teacher.

Trips, Exhibits, Supplement Art

"I feel that this year was exciting, enjoyable and had a lot of continuity," proudly explained Mr. Ken Biberstien, head of the Art Department.

Classes ranged from 25-30 students. An average of 37 seniors majored in art.

There were several students responsible for the display cases. This way students could admire other students' work.

Students had the opportunity to enter the Scholastic and St. Francis art exhibits. Classes also participated in a field trip to Chicago. There they visited the Art Institute and Sears Building. The purpose of the field trip was for students to explore and learn more about art.

Emphasis in class was put on photography, jewelery, and painting. Students took part in weaving, sculpture, silk screening, and drawing. More drawings were required than before this year.

Lori Long adds layers of color to the shapes she sketched.

Mr. Biberstien, one of the art teachers, displays the technique of two dimensional view to students.

Senior Benita Perez's hand draws a still life in Mr. Biberstien's class.

Benita's drawing of plants grows from her interpretation of what she sees.

Need a light? Beth McCorkle and Marie Ankenbruck set up the lights.

Where's the basketball? Jeff Stiers and Jeff Phelps are acting in drama class.

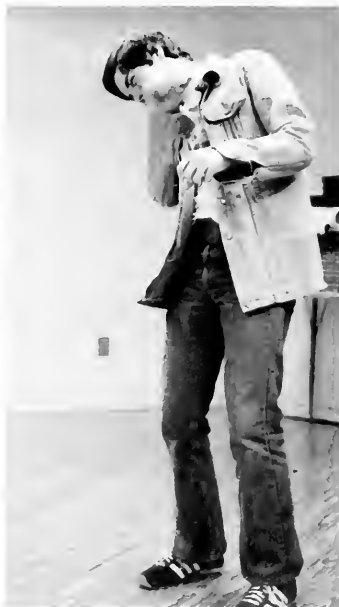

Theater arts class would help Tom Sawyer paint a fence any time.

Drama Students Learn to Emote

"Drama courses are designed for individuals that will not be professional actors or actresses, but who might take part in the Civic Theater," explained Mr. Lincoln Record.

Students learned more about emotions, sensitivity and interpretation. They practiced these things by working backstage or on stage. The new textbooks also aided in this.

Students that were not in a drama class could take part in the variety of plays put on. This way everyone had a chance to participate in drama.

Andy Guingrich plays Sakini in the "Teahouse of the August Moon."

Music Regiments Ready for Action

The fearless leader of the Music Department, Mr. John Hill, returned from a one-year absence to lead his troops into another nine month battle.

His first regiment, the choral classes, consisted of Training Choir, where fundamentals were learned; A'Cappella Choir, for general experience; Troubadours, a select group for advanced students and the Madrigals, a highly select group of people with a good ability to sight-read.

The Orchestra, or second regiment, was headed up by Mr. Philip Stubblefield. This also included the String Ensemble, where special string music is studied and performed.

The third and biggest regiment was the bands. Mr. Ed King, the director of this group, was in charge of and directed all of the bands: Varsity Band, where sophomores gained experience; and Concert Band, containing juniors and seniors studying the finest in high school and collegiate music.

Jazz courses included Rehearsal Stage Band, a preparing stage for Wildsiders, the advanced stage band.

The Marching Band directed by Mr. King, assisted by Mr. Hill, was a special combination of many band members, Arrowettes, Swiss Flags, Guide-on Flags, and anyone who wanted to march. The Band practiced every night after school to compete in various contests across the state.

Probably the most advanced course in the Music Department was Music Theory, where students study the mechanics of music.

Training Choir listens attentively to Mr. Stubblefield's instructions on how to sound better as a group.

Members of the brass section wait for their cue as Mr. King instructs them on how to play their piece.

Junior Khris Kessler works on pronunciation for the Geographical Fugue.

Mr. Hill directs Troubadours, an advanced choir for juniors and seniors.

A Facet of the 'Business World'

A variety of sounds floated into the halls as 761 students worked to learn what they could from the eight teachers and 22 courses in the Business Department. Tap-Tap-Tap echoed Keith Fisher's calls of "f-j-f space, f-j-f space," in Typing 1 and 2. Some 20 voices blended into a noisy jumble as John Eastes' students helped each other through classes such as accounting, introduction to data processing and consumer education. These and the other classes included in the business curriculum proved to be sufficient for students with post-high school plans of entering into some facet of the business world.

These students in accounting seem to find time to joke around with Mr. Eastes.

Soph Brian Heeren types with a small handicap.

An unknown person labors over correcting his mistakes during typing class.

Senior Janet Mead looks up during dictation practice in Mrs. Irma Johnson's advanced shorthand class and almost seems to be saying to the cameraman he'd better get away.

Home Economics Teaches "Life"

Mrs. Martha Moore, the Home Economics head, was very enthusiastic about the different classes in her department. They were foods, clothing, human development, home management, housing and creative living. Mrs. Moore summarized each class briefly by saying what was done over a school year. Foods was mostly cooking and demonstrations; clothing, while like stretch and sew, included instructions in certain crafts; human development students studied marriage and family life in the first semester, while in the second semester they studied pregnancy and how children develop; housing focused mainly on interior decorating; and creative living was a fairly new class that taught a little bit of everything in the Home Economics Department.

Lori Shepherd waits for the verdict as Mrs. Coplen samples her freshly-baked brownies in foods I.

Tina Fletcher adds melted butter to her chocolate.

Potting plants is just one of the many things students studying horticulture in R.V.C. learn to do.

Not an Everyday Traditional Class

"Books! We use books?!" was one of the reactions of some students in the R.V.C. (Regional Vocational Center) program. "Quite a few students who enrolled in R.V.C. thinking it was an easy way out, came back to the traditional classrooms," said Alvin Harris. Mr. Harris helps students get into R.V.C.

R.V.C. was for students who were interested in specific occupational areas. Some of the areas of study included: Health Occupations, Horticulture, Data Processing, Automotive and Metal Trades.

Some students who showed promise in their chosen areas of study also got jobs with the help of the R.V.C. Interviews. Students who got jobs usually attended regular classes once a week and worked, the rest of the week. All of these students were paid, some as much as five dollars an hour.

Lisa Cutler attends to her "patient," Laura Cline.

Industrial Arts Had Drawbacks

The first assignment for any student taking an Industrial Arts class was to get to class on time. The Industrial Arts Department was located in one of the many nooks of the school, and some students wandered around before they finally found their bearings.

The students in Woodworking class made some sawdust, but also made some useful things, such as coffee tables, chess sets and cabinets.

For the people in Power Mechanics the year was divided into two parts. First they learned the basics of electronics which deals with channeling. The second half of the year they dismantled and reassembled small gasoline engines.

Metalworking, which dealt with making things like screwdrivers, belt buckles and bookends, was instructed by Mr. Jon Bill.

Drafting students felt especially sorry for themselves. Not only did they have the task of learning architectural designs and then making models of two and three dimensional drawings, they had to learn to pronounce and spell the teacher's name. After the first week, Mr. Chris Svarczkopf gave up and decided to settle for just plain "Mr. S."

Curiosity catches Roy Rodriguez, Greg Till, and Chris Didier's attention.

The class listened to Mr. Jon Bill's interesting lecture.

P.E. Recreates Roman Empire

The Physical Education students, like the Christians, were thrown into the arena to the mercy of the "lions". The "lions" were Mrs. Diane Cole, Mr. John Ankenbruck, Mr. Myron Dickerson and Mr. Robert Taliaferro. To them the Roman Empire days were alive and well.

The fun and games started, continued and finished each class. These included swimming, tennis, soccer, football and many others. Some days the students were let out for activities, such as bowling, away from school. While the regular physical education classes in the Physical Education Department were learning more individualized activities.

Co-ordination and grace was taught in the dance and gymnastics class. The body-building class helped to tone muscles, while the tobacco-alcohol-narcotic students learned what can destroy their bodies.

Students in body building work out on different types of weights and body building equipment.

Mr. John Ankenbruck hands out literature on tobacco, alcohol and narcotics.

THE SUNDAYS

STUDENT LIFE

Friendship

In September, 432 sophomores wandered through North Side's doors for the first time. In the days that followed they met each other and became friends.

High school friendships have always been one of the most important things in every student's life. In June the seniors graduated, and all promised to keep in touch. Just how many do remains to be seen.

It appears someone has told this class a joke, or is algebra really this funny?

Jose Espada, Rita Harrison, Roger Salud, Lynne Meyer, (behind Roger) and Sarah Wiesenberg were five 1978 grads who came back for the college preview.

Togetherness

Enjoying and learning together is one of the main goals of a school. Redskins had plenty of chances to do this through formal and informal assemblies. Each assembly had its own special attraction. Students could release their frustrations by yelling at the tops of their lungs at pep sessions or have a happy reunion with last year's graduates who came back to speak at the college preview.

Working together was what enabled the Redskins to organize events like Homecoming, and this made the 1979 school year a success.

Kerry Briggs of Campus Life spoke at an assembly.

Nancy Stoudt and Inga Smulkstys show that studying together helps.

Jeff Dimit finds the representative from Rose-Holman can tell him almost anything.

Individuality

North Side was designed to suit the varied needs of the different kinds of students who have walked her halls through the years. The arena scheduling system allowed students to set up their own class schedules according to their individual needs and interests. The different clubs had something for almost everyone. There was no reason to be a misfit.

Renee Coleman finds working in a hospital suits her taste just fine.

New Service For The Home Buyer

For peace of mind—before you buy that new or used home, get a professional inspection from a licensed builder. I have over 32 years of experience in the home building trade and will check over 30 critical items on that home before you purchase it. Don't buy a house and find out after you have bought it that you will need to spend hundreds of dollars to repair it. So be smart home buyers, and get that inspection BEFORE you buy! Allen County Home Inspection, Inc. (219) 422-7692

"Smile!" says photographer Paul Watters

"I hope my senior picture turns out as good as all the other seniors' pictures," says Senior Dee Dee Didier as she poses. Seniors Joy Jeffers, Cindy Bradley, and Bill Ramsey look on at Watters Studio, where senior pictures have been taken. At 3635 Lake Avenue, Fort Wayne, you'll find portrait and commercial photographs of distinction. Call for an appointment, 422-9557.

"I want our picture in that type of frame," says Junior Brenda Hoyer as Senior Jim Duckett is undecided as they examine a Watters Studio special of North Side graduate Rita Harrison.

Snow, Strike, Little Problems

After a year marked by blizzards and floods, the 1978-79 school year was relatively calm in comparison, but there were moments when . . .

The snow did fly and close school for a day, but that was all.

The big news was the custodian and kitchen workers' strike.

School was delayed for two hours on January 11 and one hour on January 12 while the school board tried to stop the strike.

Because of a very limited supply of school lunches, the closed lunch policy was unofficially dropped. Wendy's and Penguin Point were two of the favorite lunch spots. Other students left just long enough to pick up some pizza. The fun was short-lived however, with the strikers returning to work after only two days.

First came finger-lickin' good chicken, then thumb-lickin' good pizza.

This custodian picketing in front of North Side paused to explain his cause to a passing motorist . . .

Pizza parties were a common scene in the cafeteria when the kitchen workers went on strike.

The snow was there, but it was never enough for a blizzard.

The snow plow piled the white stuff on the median between the parking lanes.
